. I've been running the "sfc" command on an AOL desktop, and it appears that the sys32.dll is corrupted. Can someone please tell me which files I could try to update using the command "sfc /scannow" and how would I download them? Thanks in advance Click to expand... As I stated above, I did the fixes needed then updated to 8.9 and have been having no issues. You might try installing the latest version and see if the fixes help. It's my opinion, and I could be wrong, but it also gives you a good idea of where the problem might lie. If you update and then report back on the issue, it might help this forum.
