Microsoft's FIFA World Coach is built in conjunction with AI (Artificial Intelligence) powering gameplay. It is the first time in the series that the mechanics of the game are powered by AI. Microsoft's FIFA World Coach technology will provide players, coaches and fans with a significant degree of insight and control over how the game should play. In FIFA World Coach, players, coaches and fans are able to implement tactical changes, such as team selection, substitutions, and set-piece strategy. Gameplay can be adjusted in real time, enabling players to change the game plan while the game is being played. World Coach simulations will include the following tools:

- I. Set-piece Tactics: Players can use team-specific tools to control where the ball is positioned, how shots are blocked, and how attackers and defenders are oriented. Skill and timing are everything when it comes to controlling where and how the ball is positioned, and World Coach is already saving tons of time for clubs and national teams.
- II. Strategy: Players can adjust the number and type of defenders, between offense and defense, attacker and defender positions, set-piece positions, substitutions, weather, and other game variables.
- III. Scoring: World Coach takes into account the attacking and defensive context for each game, and is able to model thousands of different scenarios and combinations. A variety of attacking and defensive tactics will be included so players will be able to quickly find or adjust tactics to their club's formation, style, and other parameters.

4. FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT): The classic Nintendo DS game FUT continues to push the boundaries of live connected and virtual gaming with this next version of the popular game. The FUT update is the first new feature in a decade and it opens up a number of new game modes, including Rivals, FUT Draft, and FUT Championship, as well as hundreds of new cards, outfits, and stadiums. FUT Draft is a live tournament that takes advantage of all of the new features of FIFA 22. FUT Draft was updated to include the entire Draft mode from FIFA 19, and with tournaments going on around the world, the online experience will be improved. FIFA Ultimate Team Challenge Mode is returning in FIFA 22,
